

The Donut Story

with Grandpa Jesse

Bobby and Sally were playing in the backyard. They were being very good.

Mommy went out and said, “Would you like to have a picnic?” They said, “Yes!”

Mommy brought out two donuts.
There was a red donut with white sprinkles and a white donut with red sprinkles.

Now Bobby was bigger than Sally,
so he told her, "Let's share the donuts."
Sally said, "Okay."

Bobby said, "I'll eat the outside of the donuts and you can have the donut holes. The donut holes are very special." Sally said, "Okay."

Bobby grabbed the red donut and said "Munch, munch, munch, munch, munch" until it was all gone.

Then he grabbed the white donut and said, "Munch, munch, munch, munch, munch," until it was all gone.

Sally began to cry.
She said, "Where are my donuts?"

Bobby laughed. He said,
"You get the donut holes. There's nothing in the donut holes and that's what you get. You get nothing."
He wasn't being very nice at all.

But who was always watching us?
That's right: Jesus always sees us.
And Mommy was watching, too.

Mommy was sad. She thought, “How can I help Bobby to learn a lesson?”

That night at dinner, Mommy brought in a little plate of little round donuts. They had sprinkles and cinnamon.
They smelled so good.

Mommy gave some little round donuts to Daddy. She gave some to Sally.

Bobby asked,
"Where are my little round donuts?"

Mommy said, “Oh, Bobby, I heard what you said in the backyard. You said that Sally could have the donut holes. Well, Bobby, these are donut holes. But I want some little round donuts. “Sally shared her donut with him and said, “I’ll share my donuts with you. But don’t you ever trick me again, because it wasn’t nice and it made me feel sad.”

Do you think Bobby learned his lesson?

I think he did, too.

Kindness and sharing make everyone happy—and Jesus always sees us!
